Abstract of the Disclosure

A document organizing apparatus performs a statistical process and a character string process for keywords of documents, extracts an equivalent relation, a hierarchical relation, and an associative relation between keywords, and automatically creates a directory file with links of these relations. The user searches documents using the links of the directory file.